The Lytle Greys.

The following was sent to us to-day by the Captain of the Lytle Greys, John A. Johnson, Company B, First Regiment, O. N. G.:

The Lytle Greys give an entertainment at Pike's Opera-house on next Saturday evening, consisting of tableaux and music. The entertainment will be an enjoyable one, and its object is certainly a very worthy one, viz, the benefit of the Company. We are trying to pay off our army indebtedness incurred three years ago. The whole amount was $2,400, and we have paid off $1,900.

Our entertainment will present scenes of the revolution such as "Washington Crossing the Delaware," "Washington at Trenton," "Washington at Monmouth," "Washington at Braddock's Defeat."

Who is there that does not like tableaux? The only objection we have ever heard to them is their brevity. Like all things sublimity they soon pass away, and yet we do not forget them, for well the poet has said "A Thing of Beauty is a Joy Forever," and though the thing itself may pass from view yet the remembrance of it remains. Then again of all tableaux those which excite our interest most are those which present great and historic events. Next Saturday evening at Pike's Opera-house will be presented some of the latter class under the auspices of the Lytle Greys.

APPROVED.

That is What the Mayor Did With the Street Railroad Ordinance.

The Two Fare Imposition on East End People to be Removed.

To the Honorable Board of Public Works.

GENTLEMEN—As your meeting to-day is the first since the Street Railroad Ordinance was acted upon by me, I have the honor to forward the same to your body "approved." My course being dictated by the following causes:

The present ordinance is for five years shorter time than the one I vetoed.

The present ordinance greatly reduces the fare in favor of the working classes by the selling of tickets in packages of 25 cents, 50 cents and $1. This will compel all roads, whether they accept under the ordinance or not, to be able to compete with other lines to sell tickets in the same manner, thereby working a general reduction of fares all over the city.

The Consolidated Companies have agreed to accept supplementary ordinances since the passage of this ordinance, changing the phrase in the present ordinance "25 per cent on gross earnings" to "25 per cent on gross receipts," by which the street repairing fund will receive a considerable addition. Also, that the car license shall be increased to equal what is now paid by the company under the old ordinance.

The Consolidated Company have agreed to make extensions towards Sedansville, Fairmont and Luck Run without an increase of fare. The Company could not be expected to and would not make these extensions for the benefit of the people living in the suburbs was there an unsettled status as to the length of time their charter had to run.

The Consolidated Company agree to take up the present objectionable track on Elm street, and replace it with one satisfactory to the Engineer of the Board of Public Works.

For many years the people of the East End have borne the heavy burden of paying two fares to or from their homes to the business part of the city, which has caused their property to greatly depreciate, so much so that, if the present ordinance from any cause failed to become a law, at the next representation of real estate our tax duplicate would show a great falling off.

By the adoption of this ordinance the people can ride from Piquette, in the extreme East End, to the Bellevue House, at the head of Elm street, for one fare, (or which they now have to pay three fares. They can also ride from East Station, Fairmont, to Luck Run, in the Ohio River for a single fare, while under the old ordinance two fares are exacted.

The Consolidated Company agrees to making free the section of the city lying between Main and Elm and the Ohio River and Seventh street, that is, that passengers can count on to any part of the territory included within the boundaries of the city, without paying an extra fare. Council has granted extra privileges to the Eighth-street line, to the Main-street line, the Mt. Auburn, Clifton, and lines running over the river, and I fall to see why more should be exacted from the old companies than from the others.

Very able lawyers have decided that the old companies have a perpetual right to the streets not be they for any higher offense than municipal. The Consolidated Company agrees to give up such right at the expiration of the ordinance, and as the charters of all the companies expire about the same time, the relieving our then be thrown open to the broadest competition.

The fares under the new ordinance are as reasonable as are charged in any other city. The fares, as well as the people generally, than municipal sections of the city, have united in requesting my approval of the ordinance. If we have not secured all we desired, the present ordinance is a great improvement on the whole over the old ordinance.

R. M. Moore, Mayor.

Chambers Anderson.

The trial of Chambers Anderson for the murder of Laura Franklin proceeded to-day before Judge Johnston.

Mr. Deane stated the case to the Jury in about the same manner as reported in the Star at the time of the killing.

Major Blackburn claimed that under the indictment, which was defective, the prisoner could not be tried for any higher offense than manslaughter, and moved that the Court should decide whether the prisoner could be put on trial for any higher grade of homicide.

The Court said the Jury had to decide what the grade of murder was, and overruled the motion.

Major Blackburn then said that he proposes to show that the prisoner was not guilty, as charged in the indictment.

Maud Franklin was the first witness called, and testified to the fact of the defendant coming into the room and firing at the deceased.
